

A normal question uses the form below:

Question word	Auxiliary	Subject	Verb
Who	do	you	love?

SUBJECT QUESTION

When the question word is the subject of the sentence, there is no auxiliary verb, these are called subject questions.

Question word	verb	object
Who	loves	you?

Usually with “who”, “which” and “what”.

Use “why” in reflexive questions.

Look at these two questions:

1. Who does Romeo love? Romeo loves Juliet.
2. Who loves Romeo? Juliet loves Romeo → looking for the subject.

Other examples:

- Who broke the window?
- Who likes dancing?
- Who told you that?
- What happened next?
- What fell off the shelf?
- Which book has over 1000 pages?
- Which coat do you want to buy?
- Why order food if we can go there?

1. Complete the sentences below.

a) Jon and Claire bought a new car.
_____ bought a new car?
_____ did Jon and Claire buy?
Why _____

b) Good students go to the library.
_____ goes to the library?
_____ do good students go?
Why _____

c) Tolstoy wrote War and Peace.
_____ wrote War and Peace?
_____ did Tolstoy write?
Why _____

d) Alex lives in Japan.
_____ lives in Japan?
_____ does Alex live?
Why _____

e) Emma ate all the chocolate cake.
_____ ate all the chocolate cake?
_____ did Emma eat?
Why _____

2. Choose the correct answer.

- a) What (did you / you) watch on TV last night?
- b) Where (does Mike go / Mike goes) on Tuesdays?
- c) Who (did paint / painted) the Mona Lisa?
- d) How many goals (did he score / he scored)?
- e) What (did happen / happened) at the end of the film? (happen)
- f) Which team (did win / won) the championship